

WORK? PLAY?

EDINBURGH HAS IT ALL

The financial capital of Scotland makes this a great place to work. The biggest arts festival on the planet, World heritage architecture and Scotland's great outdoors on your doorstep make it a great place to play.

Rhys Powell: I like Edinburgh because there's always a lot going on. There's always something to do. In and outside of work, there have been a lot of social activities I have been able to go to, meet new people and meet new friends.

Michael Taylor: I think, without being drawn into the inevitable comparisons between Edinburgh and London, I think just stating what I think is really positive about Edinburgh is the fact it feels quite outdoorsy almost.

Jenny Davis: In the evenings, you've got all of the culture on your doorstep in this beautiful city with so much to offer, and our office is right in the centre of town.

Andrew Keiller: Edinburgh is a very nice size, and there's a lot to do no matter what you are into. There's a lot of good restaurants and bars, and there's a lot of good sporting facilities as well. So no matter what you're into, there's something out there for you.
